

Wheat . . .

Imperial Economic Conference

The three western wheat pools have appointed representatives to the coming Imperial conference to be held at Ottawa and to present the viewpoint of post farmers in regard to that conference.

Predicts Summer Wheat A Crossover

The Canadian wheat harvest for July 31, 1932, will be in the neighborhood of 105 million bushels, according to an estimate published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This is the smallest crop since July 31, 1928. During the crop year it is estimated that 527,100,000 bushels of wheat were used for food, Alberta using 13,600,000 bushels for that purpose. Saskatchewan 7,125,000, Manitoba 3,340,000, and Ontario 7,709,000.

United States Winter Wheat

Rates fell in the United States winter wheat area, commencing April 13. These means to have been fairly general but even at that reports are that the United States estimate of 453,000,000 bushels will not be realized. The United States winter wheat crop is very important not only as an export but also as the combined wheat production of Canada, Argentina and Australia. Were it not for the crossover it is thought likely that the United States wheat would be in demand for the coming year. The next U. S. government report will appear May 10th.

Southern Hemisphere

The southern hemisphere has about 9,000,000 bushels of wheat available for shipment during the balance of the crop year compared with 12,000,000 bushels in the same last year. It can thus be seen that the export situation is not so bright and supplies from the south will be premium scarce from now on.

European Crops

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports that crops in northern Europe are inclined to be backward and that crops in central Europe, including France, Spain, and Germany, are in excellent condition. It is early yet to make any forecast, but while Europe is in such a state of uncertainty the crop seems about average for this time of year.

Wheat Prices

Wheat prices showed a slight increase over figures of a week ago. On Wednesday the closing prices of futures at Winnipeg were: May 60 1/2; July 52 1/2; October 47 1/2. A better export demand was evident on Wednesday.

THE PICTURES

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell score one of the best hits of their careers in "Merely Mary Ann" at the Orpheum Theatre. The picture is shown on Saturday of this week, May 6 and 7. It is a delightful comedy story. Never has the fragile little Janet Zangwill so splendidly illustrated her talent with such sure and simple skill. Farrell gives his best performance since talking pictures. Beryl Mercer, who heads the supporting cast, is great.

"X Marks the Spot," is the story title of the feature running Monday and Tuesday of next week, May 9. It is a sensational drama, with a newspaper man right in the middle of the mystery.

O. Henry's romantic bad man, "The Cisco Kid," is featured for Friday and Saturday of next week, May 13 and 14. Colorful characters who live, sing, live, and fight.

RINKS COMPANY

GIVEN SPECIAL CONSIDERATION

Company Has Had Many Years of Losses and in Danger of Closing Down Facilities for Winter Skating—Council Plans to Revert Company From Taxes

Successive years of losses shown by the Bassano Curling & Skating Rinks Limited have threatened the winter sports of curling, skating and hockey in Bassano. The rink company has been a losing proposition for shareholders who have had to "dig down" many times during the past few years to make good the losses in connection with the operation of the curling and skating rinks.

The situation has reached a point where the shareholders must either continue to carry on, or to relieve this situation the council has decided to exempt the rink company from taxes in order that they may continue to operate the rink company with healthful winter sports.

Radio Association Gets Under Way

With 40 Already Signed Up, Goal is Set For 60 Members—Aim to Improve Radio Reception in Area

The Bassano Radio Association was organized at a meeting of radio owners last Friday night, April 29. W. E. Sankowski was elected president, Mr. A. Haynes secretary, treasurer, and an executive committee of W. L. Flanagan, L. M. Whitehorn, and Mr. Lewis.

Forty members have already joined the association, and it is hoped to get a total of 60. The membership fee is $1.00.

The chief aim of the association is to improve radio reception in Bassano. Static noises are often caused by defects in electrical appliances such as motors, stoves, vacuum cleaners, etc. This trouble can often be overcome by making adjustments or re-wiring at little cost.

The association would like to get a census of the electrical appliances in the area, and to facilitate this they are asking all owners of such appliances to advise the association of what they have.

SEEDING IN FULL SWING AGAIN

Wheat Now Before the Rain Now Showing Well Above the Ground

Since the rain has been so good, the wheat is now showing well above the ground. The rainfall, amounting to about 60 per cent completed, is a great relief. The wheat is now showing well above the ground.

Another quarter inch rainfall last Friday afternoon caused a further delay in the work, but with ideal weather and the ground in perfect condition, the work is now about sixty per cent completed in the Bassano district.

Not for years have crop conditions been so good. The rainfall, amounting to about three inches during the past two weeks, has done much to the ground, and the soil has a large reserve supply of moisture.

THE 64 RUBY LAYRES

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

At twenty-two the only thing Diana really wanted was another woman's husband. A nervous wreck for his excitement and strain of London's gay life, she is taken by her aunt, Mrs. Gladwyn, to a famous specialist's office. The physician orders her to the country for a rest, she rebels, but the doctor is handsome and sympathetic, she learns that he is not the great man himself but an assistant, Dr. Rathbone, before leaving for the country she goes to Dennis Waterman's flat where they are surprised by the unexpected return of Mrs. Waterman. She takes the situation quite calmly and Diana and Dennis go out for the evening. Diana collapses on the dance floor. When she recovers consciousness she is in a little country cottage under the care of Dr. Rathbone and a nurse, Miss Starling. Diana does not conceal her dislike for the doctor and nurse.

Now go on with the story. "It makes it more convenient for him of course; he is a very busy man, and if you have been away from it he would probably have put you in the care of another doctor."

"Another lecture!" Diana told herself. "There was an unbroken silence for some moments, then Diana asked: 'Is he married?'"

"He ought to be," Diana said. "He's quite old."

"What do you call quite old?" Diana considered. "Oh—forty, I suppose."

"Dr. Rathbone is only about thirty-eight."

"He looks fifty," Diana declared unkindly.

"How did I come here?" Diana asked.

"He brought you."

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"He brought me?" Diana asked.

"Dr. Rathbone brought you. You were taken ill—perhaps you remember—Mrs. Gladwyn's rage. Dr. Rathbone because she was frightened and didn't know what to do."

"I only fainted. It wasn't anything."

"No answer again."

"Has Aunt Gladwyn been to see me?"

"No. Dr. Rathbone would not allow her to come."

"Dr. Rathbone seems to think he can rule my life, I suppose I shall soon have to ask his permission when I want new clothes."

"I don't think they would interest him."

"I don't suppose I interest him either, really do I?"

"Very much—as a patient."

"I suppose he makes a great deal of money."

"Miss Starling said quietly."

"Dr. Rathbone runs a small home for children at his own expense—that can be done for a small sum."

"He seems to be a kind of hero," Diana sneered.

"Can I get you anything? If not, I will leave you for a little while."

"I don't want anything," was the reply.

"The door closed softly."

Why had the Creature left her alone? He did not want to be left alone to her thoughts. When Rathbone had said that she was to be left alone, she would not be left to her thoughts, not for a single moment.

It was such an accident, of course he would see that her wishes were carried out.

CHAPTER V

It would be fun to get out of bed and creep over to the window; fun to see what lay outside, under the cover of those lilies.

She listened, but there was no sound in the house, and with little and little she put the bed clothes gently aside and swung her feet down to the floor.

Her legs felt as if they did not belong to her, and if they had not been a little and a chair to cling to she would never have reached the window at all. But she was there at last, breathless and faint, with beads of perspiration on her face.

The fresh air revived her a little, and she knelt down by the open window, both hands clinging to the narrow sill.

It was very beautiful, Diana knelt there by the window looking out with eyes that were somehow tragic in her white face.

She felt weak and helpless; she wished it was not so far back to bed. Not that she wanted to go back—she felt that she could have stayed there forever looking out on the fields and trees and hedges. She hated the country, and yet it gave her such a feeling of peace. Like someone laying a cool hand on your forehead when it ached very badly after a succession of late nights.

She turned round and looked at the bed—it seemed miles away. She made an effort to rise but checked herself quickly—she was sure she would fall. The bed was so far away to look on the other side of the room, and she was too weak to try it. She might try but they would not hear her if she did.

There was a little sound out in the road. A big car had drawn noiselessly up to the gate, and a man was getting out.

A big man with a very unprofessional appearance—Rathbone.

Diana made another effort to rise. He would be so angry with her. She heard his step on the path, then his voice talking to the maid.

"Oh, well, I'll go up"—then his step on the stairs.

The Creature was not there, of course—and now she would be angry to find her out of bed. Not that she cared if he was angry; he was well paid to look after her. He ought to have said word that he would be coming. Diana was trembling from head to foot as she clung to the window sill, her face turned to the door.

Rathbone came in—he gave one glance at the bed before he saw her and she broke out tearfully, "I was so tired of bed—I wanted to see what was outside . . . and I can't get back."

He crossed the room in a stride and picked her up as if she had been a child, depositing her in bed and pulling the blanket over her head.

"How long have you been there?"

"Only just before you came."

"I told you to stay in bed. I told Miss Starling—"

"She's gone out . . . she must go out sometime," she added resentfully, for once defending the Creature.

Well, if you do it again you'll have to have two nurses. What would you have done if I had?"

Stayed there, I suppose," Diana whispered.

He stood looking down at her, unkindly.

"Do you want to get well?" he asked brusquely.

Her lips moved, but no words came; her big eyes stared up at him mournfully.

"If you don't want to get well, say so, and I won't come any more," he said ruthlessly. "But it seems a pity—a child like you. All your life before you—everything to look forward to."

She spoke then, in trembling bitterness. "I hate my life . . . there isn't anything to look forward to now. I care if I die. I suppose you've never wanted to die?"

"I've never been very ill. I answered humorously. "And it's only when you feel ill and weak that you think it will be an easy way out."

that she was about to be taken out of prison, well enough to find the questions of the little room, rather trying; she listened eagerly for his step on the stairs.

She could hear him downstairs taking to his bed. It seemed an eternity till he came up to her.

"Well," he said cheerily, "And how are you today?"

She searched his face with eager eyes.

"Are you going to take me out?" He laughed. "Didn't I promise? But let me look at you first."

"You must be better, much better," she asserted him seriously.

After she had been dressed Rathbone lifted her gently in his arms—she was little more than a feather-weight—and carefully carried her down the narrow staircase of the little house.

The Creature was standing by the car—a different car to the one Diana had seen drive down the lane when Rathbone had called.

"I'm going to drive you myself," he said as he carefully set her down on the seat of the car where pillows and rugs had already been methodically arranged by Miss Starling.

"That means you're going to sit in front," Diana said disappointedly.

"That's where the driver generally sits," he answered calmly.

In less than half an hour they were back at the cottage and Jenny greeted them at the door, her face all smiles, her eyes very knowing as she looked at Diana.

"Have you enjoyed it, Miss?" she asked, and Diana answered of her such a little way—it was hardly worth going for.

Rathbone laughed as he carried her upstairs again and set her down.

"That's base ingratitude," he said cheerfully. "And I've sacrificed my Saturday afternoon to you."

She met the kindness of his eyes and returned a little.

"Thank you for taking me," she said.

She clung to his hand for a moment. "I'll come again soon," she promised.

CHAPTER VI

Monday was a glorious day. Diana woke with the throbbing sensation that something good was going to happen. Then she remembered Dennis was coming.

She asked the Creature an anxious question.

"How long have I been here?"

"Nearly three weeks."

"That's a lifetime. Three weeks without ever seeing Dennis!"

She hoped the Creature would not take it into her silly head to stay at home this afternoon.

But the Creature went out.

CASH PRIZES

How many Super Twist Cords in the average Goodyear Tire?

Bassano Service Station
A. P. PIERSON, proprietor
Bassano, Alta.

Come in and see Super Twist Cords demonstrated and get a helpful booklet of contest directions.

A cool THOUSAND DOLLARS for merely estimating the number of cords in the average Goodyear Tire! Think of what you could do with that $1,000.00. New car? Cottage at the lake? . . . Trip abroad? . . . Education for the youngsters? . . . Oh, there are plenty of wonderful things one can do with real money and lots of it. And there is no catch in this contest. Someone is going to win the $1,000 first prize for the nearest correct estimate. And others will get the 103 other cash prizes which vary from $500.00 down to $10.00.

You don't have to spend a cent of money to enter. Read the simple contest conditions, get an entry blank from any dealer selling Goodyear Tires, and send in your estimate to-day.

Anyone from a household in Canada where a car is owned may enter. There is no entry fee, nothing to buy, no special requirement. All tire dealers, all employees of rubber companies and the families of both are deburred.

See the six Goodyear Tires of various sizes, types and ply-thickness at any Goodyear tire dealer's, then estimate the number of cords in each, add the six individual tire estimates together, and divide by six to strike the average. Submit the number you estimate on a standard entry blank which may be obtained free of charge at any Goodyear tire dealer's.

A section of the fabric showing the Super Twist cords, is on display in every Goodyear tire dealer's store. This will help you make your estimate.

The closing date is June 5th, 1932. No entry bearing a later postmark date will be considered. Address: "The Goodyear Super Twist Cord Contest," New Toronto, Toronto 14, Ontario.

Baseball Game May Fifteenth

Queenstown and Bassano Will Clash in First Game of the Season on Sunday, May 16 Team Meeting in Good Practice

The first baseball game of the 1932 season will be played in the Bassano park Sunday afternoon, May 16, when the Bassano and Queenstown teams will clash. The game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

The players have been getting in some good practice, but the rainy weather has interfered to some extent.

The team will be out for practice again next Sunday afternoon.

CATCH BASIN INSTALLED NEAR TENNIS COURTS

The town public works department has installed a catch basin at the tennis court corner where the main highway turns north to Calgary. The work was done last week.

Surface which which used to gather at this corner will now drain into the sewer, and the improved drainage should make for better street in wet weather.

The street at this point and north was graded at the same time.

Members of the tennis club are pleased with the improvement. The water can now be quickly drained from the courts, thus saving time there for days, as in past years, and making the courts too wet for use.

CAID OF THANKS

He Couldn't Afford It

That's what he said when asked about having some minor adjustments and small repair jobs done on his car. These minor troubles later developed into serious ones, and his car was put completely out of commission. Expensive replacements and repairs were necessary before his car was again ready for use.

The old axiom about an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure contains a ton of truth.

Don't let that car of yours get run down. Keep it in good running shape all the time and you will be free of trouble and expensive repair bills.

Have an Expert Motor Mechanic and Electrician do your car repair work.
